Dear Les:

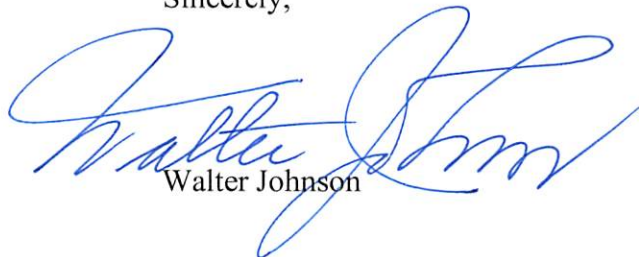

I have been asked by Dr. Timothy Quinn to provide a listing of cases that he has assisted me with over the last ten (10) plus years. I cannot recall specifically when I first retained Tim, but the relationship has been continual, as he has served as both a consulting and testifying expert in both personal injury cases, as well as medical negligence cases. Unfortunately, I have not kept a list of cases I retained him on, but can comment generally on him in both those roles, although I have not had the opportunity to put him on the stand before a jury.

Tim has taught me an incredible amount of medicine over the years, and I have taught him about litigation from both the perspectives of the plaintiff and the defendant. Tim understands the concepts of liability, causation, and damages. He is extremely intelligent and willing to do the work necessary to be the smartest guy in the room on any medical issue that he forms an opinion about.

The greatest benefits that Tim adds to any case are his reputation in the community, his physical presence and his ability to relate and communicate to people. As you are probably aware, Tim is a regular on the local news networks and provides educational pieces to both television and radio listeners. Tim has incredible charisma and takes a gentle approach to educating a listener of his opinions, as well as the basis for his opinions.

I have no reservation recommending Tim as a potential expert for you or your clients. If I can address any specific concerns do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

Walter Johnson
